

Alabama Hills Stewardship Group (California)

The Alabama Hills have been the setting for hundreds of films and television productions since the 1920s, including classics like “Gunga Din” and “How the West Was Won.”

The area is also used for recreation by the public. To address multiple challenges associated with landscape preservation, tourism and recreation, the local community formed a strong community-based partnership known as the Alabama Hills Stewardship Group. The Group has built a film history museum, developed a trail, launched an outreach campaign, and encouraged dialogue among multiple interests.

Nominated by the Bureau of Land Management

Individuals

Robert Frickel

Linda Hubbs

Woody Hunter

Dave Kirk

Gene Mathern

Russ Monroe

Mike & Nancy Prather

Tim Standing

Michael Strassman (posthumous)

Jon Turner

Beverly and Jim Rogers Museum of Lone Pine Film History

Bureau of Land Management, Bishop Field Office

Bill Dunkelberger

Joy Fatooh

Becky Hutto

Jim Jennings

Scott Justham

Donna McMullen

Diana Pietrasanta

Joe Pollini

Lawrence Primosh

Richard D. Williams

Bureau of Land Management, Central California Resource Advisory Committee

Mary Gorden

Paul McFarland

City of Los Angeles Department of Water and Power

Donald Reeves

County of Inyo, California

Richard Cervantes

Healthy Communities of Southern Inyo County

Charles James

Inyo County Film Commission

Chris Langley

Lone Pine Band of the Owens Valley Paiute-Shoshone Indians

Kathy Jefferson Bancroft

Sanford Nabahe

Wilfred Nabahe

Lone Pine Chamber of Commerce

Dana Jeffries

Kathleen New

McDonalds of Lone Pine, California

Kevin & Lis Mazzu

Whitney Portal Store

Doug Thompson